SALT LAKE

CITY AND NEIGHBORHOOD.

The wild chicken season opened Tuesday and the dealers expect to have new game on the market the latter part of the week. They expect shipments to come from the Bear River country and Idaho, where grouse are plentiful.

Local implement dealers report a great sale of threshers and harvesting machinery generally. The farmers are very busy.

Governor Cutler has received a letter from Secretary M. F. Cunningham of the Utah Lewis and Clark commission, stating that the expedition will start daily by the class from the school for the deaf, dumb and blind are attracting considerable attention and favorable comment. The class is composed of six pupils and the exercises are given twice each day, at 11 o'clock in the morning and at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The pupils are very well behaved and the children seem very flattered. Secretary Cunningham also states that the coming of the Ogden tabernacle choir is looked forward to with interest and that Utah day and week will be a great success.

William Redmond, the noted Irish leader of the British parliament, is expected to visit Salt Lake about AUG. 28. Colonel Joseph Geoghegan is in charge of arrangements for his reception, and will probably decide on a programme that will include an address by the distinguished Irishman.

The announcement that more than $1,000 of the $5,000 necessary to the construction of Wasatch drive has been raised is good news. The Commercial club committee having the matter in charge has done excellent work. It is no easy task to raise money for a public enterprise during the dog days.

Street developments are progressing with all possible rapidity in Las Vegas, Nev. Howard Tuttle of the contracting firm is in charge of this work. Seven miles of streets are being graded, curbed, oiled and gravelled. The contractors are expediting the work and expect to be finished by October 1, when Las Vegas will have regular metropolitan streets.

E. R. Weeks has purchased the property known as the Bishop Sharp farm, on State street north of the Granite state tabernacle. The price given was $13,500. Mr. Weeks expects to divide the property into lots of one acre for building purposes.

Salt Lake is suffering the evils of a water shortage, despite efforts of the water supply department to relieve the situation. The department is coping with the situation by diverting water from the city's water supply to the city's water supply. It is to remedy this that the city administration is hastening the construction of the Cottonwood conduit, which will insure a plentiful supply of water for next summer and succeeding years. Work for the construction of the conduit will be opened Sept. 4.

Salt Lake lost one of its most useful citizens in the departure of the Rev. T. W. Pinkerton, the first Catholic pastor of the city. Dr. Pinkerton could not be induced to leave Salt Lake, but during the comparatively few years of his residence here he has made many friends and attained a higher standing than many men in a lifetime. Dr. Pinkerton goes to Kenton, O., where he will assume direction of the congregation he left to come to Salt Lake.

Seventy-five-cent fuel gas and $1.25 illuminating gas of the same standard of efficiency as that supplied Chicago, New York and Philadelphia are pronounced the citizens of Salt Lake. The ordinance passed by the city council granting a fifty per cent. franchise to George A. Snow of Salt Lake and William Hurd of Chicago, is a very creditable achievement.

X. B. The mayor vetoed the ordinance. Lieutenant Colonel Land last week was elected colonel of the National Guard, in speaking of the election. Acting Adjutant General Geoghegan said: "Colonel Land has been an upright and devoted officer since he first became connected with the guard. His records and accounts have always been correct, and in addition, he has displayed unusual ability as a military officer. His election will be a very creditable service to the city as a very creditable achievement."

Colonel Geoghegan declared the guard had never had better prospects than now. He predicted that within a year every organization would have waiting lists. Colonel Geoghegan became enthusiastic in discussing plans for consideration for the erection of a new drill hall on a vacant lot adjoining the new armory on the west. John E. Dooly is negotiating with the guard with a view to erecting on this ground a drill hall 65 by 50 feet. The plan contemplates converting the present drill hall into a modern gymnasium.

SACRED HEART ACADEMY.

Aims to Fit Students for Every Sphere of Life.

Ogden, Aug. 16.—Summer is a season of earnest anxiety for parents who have children to be educated and many thousands of mothers are sending their children far off, yet right in our midst we have institutions which rival any in the land. Before deciding the school where their children should be educated, parents should either visit Sacred Heart academy or examine its catalogue for 1905.

Beautifully located near the foot of the picturesque Wasatch, within a short distance of Ogden's historic canyon, stands this beautiful building, one of the favorite institutions of the West. Since environment is such an important factor in the development of heart and mind, and since tranquility and study and reflection, the situation of Sacred Heart must appeal to all as an ideal one from an educational viewpoint.

The entire building is heated by hot water, lighted by electricity, supplied with all modern appliances that contribute to comfort and home feeling, and equipped with all the requisites for a thorough and accomplished education. No better school is to be found in the West. The academy's growing favor and the steady increase of its students. The enrollment for the past year far outnumbered that of any previous term. Sacred Heart academy offers young ladies every facility for acquiring the highest grade of education. The course of studies is thorough and systematic, and embraces four departments—minors, juniors, preparatory and academic. The high standard of each year is required for graduation in both academic and musical departments has secured the commendation of all true educators. The musical department, modeled after the best conservatories, affords unsurpassed advantages to those desiring musical education. The high degree of excellence attained in both vocal and instrumental is well attested by the unanimous praise bestowed by competent critics. The frequent musical, literary and dramatic entertainments given are a great incentive to the students' improvement in these lines, besides the opportunity they afford parents and friends to judge the student's progress. The following tribute to the merits of these performances: "For skill, taste and artistic arrangement of the evening would do credit to any conservatory in the country." Eloquent and the art of expression receives special attention. In the art department students receive careful instruction in the principles of perspective drawing, china painting, sketching from nature, painting in oil and water color, and pyrography.

Equally noted for beauty and variety, the results of the artistic endeavor effort is made to impart a homelike atmosphere to the students and to them for any sphere of life.

ODGEN.

Mrs. Elizabeth Richley Swan died at the home of her brother, Walter Richley, 2414 Madison avenue, Ogden, Aug. 8. She died less than forty-eight hours before, and the husband and wife were united in the same grave. The couple had lived together nearly forty-seven years and grief over the incurable illness of her husband hastened the end of Mrs. Swan. The two were born at Carmichael, Pa. They were married in 1859 and removed to Ohio. In 1862 they came west to Iowa and lived there until 1874, when they came west to Wyoming, where Mr. Swan soon became a prominent figure in the state as the head of the Swan Land & Cattle company. Over the years, the company of the kind in the world. In 1888 they removed from Cheyenne to Ogden, where Mr. Swan was one of the owners and producers of the mining industry. For a number of years he has been participating in active business. Mr. Swan was 74 and his wife 72 years of age. They have two sons, W. R. Swan of Ogden and Mrs. R. S. Van Tassel of Cheyenne. Mrs. Swan was a sister of Walter and A. F. Richley, both of Ogden.

The opening of the Hermitage hotel in Ogden canyon was formally celebrated Monday. About 400 persons were at the tables when supper was served in the big dining room. Governor Cutler was represented by his private secretary and there were many guests from Salt Lake and Ogden.

The committee engaged in the collection of funds to pay the expenses of the Ogden tabernacle, which will be held here, have reported that there is now a deficit of $2,000 in the fund.

Farmers and others who have been fighting the grasshopper and cricket pests have been compelled to let the pests have their own way for a few days. The crops in the valley of the local and Salt Lake drug stores has been exhausted. The poison has been provided free by the county commissioners.

The council held an adjourned meeting Monday night, and the members voted $100 to aid the Catholic Relief association. All the members except Councilman Nye voted in favor of the appropriation. The council also decided to purchase a new telephone for the most important act of the session was to order that the Grand opera house be fully equipped, both front and rear, with modern fire escapes, without delay.

The arrival of a baby in the family of Mr. and Mrs. Edith Argue, of the third street, has caused much rejoicing. The excursion season is at its height and heavy travel is reported through the Union depot yards and all direct trains. A special train from Morgan county Wednesday carried about 700 persons to the Ogden canyon. The annual picnic of the employees of the Ogden O'Brien store in Salt Lake was held at the Hermitage.

BE INDEPENDENT.

Everyone should lay something by for a rainy day. Old age and infirmities should not be made worse by poverty. No matter what station one may occupy, it is important to provide a competence, however small, to live upon when incapacitated for work. The man who goes along improvidently during his working years will probably be an unweaned babe when upon someone in his declining years.

A safe depository, where savings will accumulate and fructify, free from the risks of speculation, and where the money is strictly confidential and paying as high a rate of interest as safety will permit, should be selected.

Such an institution is The Salt Lake Security & Trust company. It has a paid up capital of $200,000, certified by the secretary of state.

Its business has been steadily growing for twenty years. In that time, it has handled millions of dollars with perfect satisfaction to all concerned. Its ample resources enable it to furnish money to customers whenever wanted.

The business can be done through the mails as well as personally. Its certificates can be transferred by endorsement, thus saving court expense and publicity in cases of death.

It is not often that this paper can recommend a financial institution so strongly; but when a concern has been doing business in a community for twenty years, conducted by men of the highest standing, and with ample capital, we are perfectly safe in recommending it, and we know that many of our readers are in need of just such a place.

Cut out the following and mail it to the company:

Name _____
Address _____
City _____
State _____

"Can I get my money when I need it?" writes a correspondent. We answer: "If you have any time limit, we have securities to meet it. Our securities are maturing at all times." The next mail brought a draft for $7,000 to be invested for fifteen months. The Salt Lake Security & Trust Co., satisfied the demand.

DENVER AND RETURN $18.00.

On August 12 and 13, round trip tickets to Denver will be sold via the Colorado Midland at $18.00. The Midland route is the right way through the Rockies for the best scenery, service and equipment. Obituary.

SAMUEL VADNER.

Samuel Vadner, a resident of this city, died at his home, 1010 East 10th street, Saturday.

A man of simple habits, deep religious convictions and great humility. Vadner impressed all who knew him with his business relations with him very favorably. In his own home, where he was simple and retiring, he made every effort to make his friends happy, and with his own family he served as the ideal master of a true Christian home.

He was a successful business man, beginning life at the first rung of the ladder as a wage earner and working himself up gradually till in middle life he was doing a thriving business in North Adams, Mass., in North Adams, where he lived since his boyhood, the church of Notre Dame was built through his zeal, energy and generosity. During the illness of his wife, he was patient and resigned to God's holy will. His unflinching temper was undisturbed to the end. With no appearance of the final struggle, or the death was near, he went to sleep, resting calmly for a brief period, when the soul departed before those who had known him well. May his soul rest in peace, and his good example serve as an inducement to all who knew him to a good and virtuous life.

EUREKA, UTAH.

Labor day, Sept. 4, will be fittingly celebrated in Eureka by the local branch of the Western Federation of Miners. The finance committee has made a canvas of the business houses and enough money has been subscribed to insure a splendid programme of sports. A purse of $500 will be hung up for the drilling contest and one and possibly two teams from Park City will come to Eureka to take part in the contest. Over 100 of the local people are expected to be present, and for children's sports, dance, etc., and the day should be a pleasant one for all.

An effort will be made to bring the Park City team here for a game with the Eureka nine and this game will no doubt be one of the features of the day.

All the union laborers and tradesmen are requested to take part in the parade and many of the business houses will be represented by floats. Instead of electing a Glee club, the popular vote the union will appoint some prominent young lady to act in this capacity.—Eureka Reporter.

The members of the local lodge of Knights of the Macabees were very pleasantly surprised recently by their wives and lady friends. The ladies arrived at the hall just before the adjournment of the lodge and from that time on until midnight a general good time was in order. There was a brief programme of songs, recitations, speeches and lectures.

Speeches and lectures followed by a palatable lunch. The evening was a very enjoyable one and the members of the order are willing to be surprised in the same manner almost any time.

Mike Downey, son of City Councilman P. C. Downey, had a narrow escape from being seriously injured while he was with the Bell telephone line crew at Robinson. The force was at work repairing the damage caused by the recent fire and Downey was climbing a pole when he slipped and fell. The pole was about twenty-two feet, and while no bones were broken the shock rendered him almost unconscious for a few minutes. He was taken to the hospital and recovered from the bruises sustained.

He returned to Eureka Saturday, but it will be some time before he is able to work again.

INDIAN ROMANCERS.

Of late years, the number of writers among the Cherokees has greatly increased. There are historians in the tribe whose works are used as text books in the Indian schools and who are cited as authorities not to be disputed. There are also Indians who have written codes of the law, which before being put in permanent form had been handed down from generation to generation. The Indians today obey laws with a greater reverence than they do the laws of the United States. There are Indian novelists—novelists who devote their time to entertaining the Indian mind with romance, with tangled plots and blood-curdling climaxes. These books are popular among the Indians. Edition after edition of some works is published and they are read by warrior and squaw alike.

CHURCH AND STATE SEPARATE.

Secretary Taft Explains the Change in the Philippines.

At Manila, P. I., a dinner was given last week by Archbishop Hartley to the members of the Taft party. Toasts were responded to as follows: "Welcome," by Archbishop Hartley; "Apostrophe," by Apostolic Delegate Aguirre; "The President," by Secretary Taft, and "The Philippines," by Representative Cochran.

Secretary Taft in his address said: "It is a great pleasure to respond to the toast his grace the archbishop has done me the honor to propose. He changes effected by the Spanish war, bringing the United States into the time into Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines, brought about a more necessary association between the government of the United States and the Philippine Islands, than have ever theretofore existed. It was not that the constitution of the United States was changed; it was not that the Philippine Islands, or church was to be recognized, but it was that in taking over from Spain the responsibility of government in these new dependencies, what was almost a single tie under the Spanish regime, the government and the Church, had to be separated into two.

"Under the just auspices of the United States government, in bringing about that change, it became necessary that an association should be established which under the circumstances prevailing in the United States proper had never before been necessary. It required a strong and an agent of the United States to represent the United States to Rome itself that there might be a conference between those who could speak authoritatively for the Roman Church and one appointed to represent for a time the government of the United States, to aid in solving the intricate problems that were presented by the transfer of property from a government in which the Church and government were common, into one in which the Church and government were entirely separated.

"This produced an association for some of us that I may say has been exceedingly pleasant, so agreeable has the association been made while trying to solve the difficulties presented by the situation.

"Now, the toast to which I am to respond is a toast to the president of the United States. That office is now occupied by Theodore Roosevelt. Theodore Roosevelt is not a member of the Roman Catholic Church. He is a member of the Dutch Reformed Church, and is a Protestant, but his principal rule in the administration of his great office, so far as it affects churches, has been announced by himself in this wise: 'I do not think it proper to receive a president, if a Catholic, act toward the Protestant Church.'"

"That he wishes, as the president of the United States, to act toward the Roman Catholic Church as he would have a president, if a Catholic, act toward the Protestant Church." Representative Cochran, in his response, pointed out to the Philippines that by honest, hard labor they would uplift themselves. From the soil must come their greatness and fitness, and he assured them that they would be protected if it took the last dollar in the treasury and the last soul in the army.

THE DIGNITY OF LABOR.

Cardinal Gibbons Says it is Sanctified by Christ's Example.

At Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Aug. 11, a great ovation was given to President Roosevelt by the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America and the Miners' union, both organizations holding conventions at the same time. All the streets which the procession traversed were densely crowded and every house was covered with the national colors. His ovation from the beginning of the drive to the seat of the president, the president himself was the singing of 300 little girls, dressed in white. Cardinal Gibbons rode in the president's carriage until the procession reached the rectory of St. Mary's church, where the prelate left the president. Cardinal Gibbons, in his address, said:

"Mr. President, Friends and Fellow Citizens: I am sure you are profoundly grateful to the president, for his presence in Wilkes-Barre is a solemn and auspicious occasion, and your attitude is emphasized by the consideration that his visit to you is made at a time when he is engaged in the discharge of his duties as president of the United States and has grave foreign relations to engage his attention."

"He has held out the olive branch to two great and hostile nations, he is discharging the blessed office of peacemaker, and he brings the olive branch of peace and good will to you. I have no doubt that his visit will be a potent factor in cementing the relations between you and your employees."

"Before the advent of Christ, manual labor was degrading. Our blessed Saviour came to blot out the pernicious curse that had been pronounced upon it. Ever since He labored at Nazareth in the carpenter's shop, He has shed a halo around the honest manual workingman and He has sanctified labor."

"If the office of a president is ennobled by the example of a Washington and a Lincoln, so the office of a jurist is ennobled by the example of a Marshall and a Taney; if the function of a statesman is ennobled by the example of a Burke and a Webster, surely the calling of a mechanic and the workman is sanctified by the example of Jesus Christ."

"St. De Tocqueville, a distinguished French writer, published a work embodying his observations on the United States in which he pays a beautiful tribute to our economic institutions and the respect in which labor is held in this country. He says that in our land every honest employment is honorable."
